The sun is of course necessary for life on earth. It is from it where we experience light and warm air. It provides energy in plants life and brings happiness to people and animals. We all know how bad we feel when it is cold or dark.

The fact is that the Earth turns round and round, which causes division of day and night. All living things are controlled by the existence of light and darkness. The sun decides for us time to sleep and time to be awake. In the Northern part of Norway there is continuous sunshine in summer time. It is very strange to people who are not used to it. So people find it difficult to go to bed if the sun still shines. Some animals behave differently in the sunshine. An Euglena is an animals which shelters around lakes. It is like a bird which swings well when the sun shines and moves to find the position of the sunshine.

Some flowers open when the sun shines and close up at night in the absence of sunshine.

QUESTIONS

- Suggest a suitable title for the passage?
- Mention two advantages of the sun?
- How do people feel when it is cold or dark?
- In which country do we find continuous sunshine in summer time?
